You can access the features for editing photos by using the Expert panel. You can open it from the Window menu. Essential Photoshop The following are the most essential features of Photoshop. You can find several of these features elsewhere in the program but can use them all as part of the same work. You may or may not find these features essential, depending on how often you use these features. The Bridge: This is where you import images into Photoshop and create a new document, copy the contents of an existing document into a new document, create a thumbnail view of a photo, use the Quick Selection tool to tag out photos, and load and export files to other programs, including E-mail. The Bridge also contains the File menu, the Picture menu, and the Layer panel. The History panel: This panel shows the history of edits and changes in a photo by showing copies of the photo that were used as reference while you edited the photo. You can also use the History panel to undo a last change, even if you don't have a current copy of the photo to undo it. To use this feature, choose Window⇒History. The History panel is shown in Figure 8-1. Layers: This feature organizes a photo in layers, which enable you to create a complicated set of layers that you can individually edit. You can add, edit, move, or hide layers, but you can't delete them. Levels: As you begin to edit a photo, you may see the Levels adjustment, which is a kind of lightroom-type tool that fine-tunes the image. You may find that some areas need to be darkened or brightened to correct an image. In Photoshop, you use the Levels adjustment more extensively. Shadows/Highlights: This adjustment adds shadows to a photo and brightens the highlights so that you can fine-tune the color of the photo. Adjustment layers: These are different from the Layers panels in that you can add, edit, and move them at will. You can also duplicate the Adjustment layers to create a number of these adjustment layers, all of which can be edited separately or together to adjust the overall photo. This is the tool where you use the Curves tool to adjust the image's color and the Graduated filter to adjust the light and color of an image. Channels: This tool enables you to make changes to a photo based on its light,

There are many similarities between Photoshop and Photoshop Elements. They are both paid applications, which makes them both viable choices. Here, we explain the differences between the apps. 1. Photoshop Elements is designed for professional and non-professional photographers There are certain tools in the stock of Photoshop that are not available in Photoshop Elements. When you need advanced features, Adobe Photoshop is the only place to go for this. The advantage of Photoshop Elements is that it is a powerful tool for amateur photographers. You can use it for retouching images, creating new text banners, editing black-and-white images to color them, adding drop-shadows and many other features that you'd otherwise expect to have to pay more for. 2. Photoshop Elements has fewer features Some image editing options are not available in Photoshop Elements, like: The Color Balance tool in Photoshop A selection tool for making precision selections A Crop tool The Lasso tool The Advanced Healing Brush The free texture gallery The Adobe Prepress Module 3. Photoshop Elements is an alternative to Photoshop, but not a replacement Even though Photoshop Elements is a powerful and versatile image editor for non-professionals, and even though it contains the same features as Photoshop, it will never replace Photoshop. For better or worse, Photoshop is a much more user-friendly and powerful image editor. Photoshop Elements is great for many different types of image editing jobs, whether it's for creating smartphone apps, designing logos, making high-quality memes, or creating movie posters. 4. Photoshop Elements is a good choice for image editing To edit images, Photoshop Elements provides all of the basic tools you need. It doesn't have the precision tools that Photoshop has but it does support many different file formats, including RAW files. For non-professionals who often take photos of landscapes and still lifes, Photoshop Elements can take a picture and retouch it to turn it into a different photo. For photo editing and image resizing, Photoshop Elements is a good choice. For people who want to edit more complicated images such as GIFs, memes, photos with watermarks or 3D images, Photoshop is the best choice. 5. Photoshop Elements gives you access to advanced color editing tools Adding a new color to an image can sometimes be more complicated than it should be. Photoshop Elements has 05a79cecff

And after a year and a half of enrollment, the number of Obamacare enrollees has now reached 9.6 million, 2.3 million of whom signed up through the Web site. ADVERTISEMENT That's 13 percent of the roughly 119 million Americans who have access to insurance through the Obamacare exchanges, making the law far bigger than any of the presidential candidates have acknowledged, according to a new survey. In a new ABC News/Washington Post poll, 34 percent of Americans say that their personal finances have changed because of President Obama's healthcare reform law. By comparison, only 7 percent of people say they have had an improvement in their financial situation since the Great Recession, and only 15 percent say their situation is better now than a year ago. In the same ABC/Washington Post poll, 37 percent of Americans describe their personal finances as "about the same" as a year ago, up from 31 percent last month. Only 10 percent say their financial situation has worsened. The poll also found that Obamacare has a significant impact on people's finances: more than six in ten say they have had to pay more for health care since Obama's healthcare law went into effect. The numbers correspond with a similar poll from the Kaiser Family Foundation earlier this week showing that Obamacare had been a factor in about one in four people's personal financial situation. Even Obama's former adviser, David Axelrod, who has long expressed doubts about the ability of the law to create a significant wave of new enrollees, agreed with the ABC/Washington Post poll. "It's not only odd, it's telling when you see how much people are actually improving," Axelrod said on MSNBC. "There was a study a month or so ago that said after 9.5 million had signed up, you'd expect to see 12 million. So it actually exceeds expectations and that's where people start to worry, how is this going to sort of work and that's the problem that the president has to address." The ABC/Washington Post poll released Thursday also found that 54 percent of Americans think Obamacare will save them money, up from 40 percent last month. However, by a nearly two to one margin — 55-26 percent — those polled said the law will make their healthcare more expensive. The Democrats' healthcare law has made some inroads
