Baby: A Girlfriend's Guide to the Art of Electronics Catch It Baby: A Girlfriend's Guide to the Art of Electronics is the third studio album by English singer-songwriter Ed Sheeran, released on 10 September 2012. Production for the album began in 2009, and took place during 2010–11. It was Sheeran's first album to feature writing credits from several of his collaborators, including Max Martin, Bloodshy & Avant, and Steve Mac. The album also features a guest appearance from rapper Eminem. Sheeran would later write and record "Lego House", a song that would be featured on his next album, + (2013). He referenced the op-art artwork from Catch It Baby during the opening sequence of the music video for the song "Sing", allowing Sheeran to tie the two music videos together. Catch It Baby received positive reviews from critics, particularly in comparisons to Lady Gaga's album The Fame (2008). Its commercial performance was initially modest, peaking at number fifteen in the UK Albums Chart. The album has been certified platinum in the UK and has sold 1.1 million copies worldwide as of August 2016. Two singles were released from the album, the "Small Bump" and the lead single "Give Me Love". The former charted at number one in the UK, Australia and the Republic of Ireland. "Give Me Love" went on to become the sixth best-selling single of 2012, having sold 602,250 copies in the UK as of May 2013. A third single, "Thinking Out Loud", featuring rapper Eminem, was released on 3 June 2012. Background In 2009, Sheeran released his debut album + (Heavier Things) which received a lukewarm response. Sheeran subsequently sought out new collaborators to improve his work. Following the completion of his second album, he travelled in Scandinavia with the intention of "see[ing] a new place and meet[ing] new people", influencing the maturation of the album. It was this trip that helped Sheeran to wrap his head around the concept of the album and then complete production. Sheeran described it as "an exercise in colour" and that he decided to "use colour ... [as] my canvas". The production process was a long and winding process, with Sheeran writing lyrics and music for twelve years before it was complete. He described the effort as taking "a long time, but
