In just a few days you will be able to download the most important overhaul of the website since its creation. This new version will include a completely updated look and feel, new organizing principles, a new order of organization, and a new and powerful search engine which will allow you to find any information quickly and easily. The new look and feel of the site comes about after much discussion between myself, the people who will be designing the site, and the various committees that will be using the site. The response to the new look and feel has been overwhelmingly positive, and I hope that all users will find it easy to use and enjoyable.

The reorganization of the site is more than just an aesthetic change. Reorganization is the way to make sure the site is the best it can be in terms of content and style. To do this, new organizing principles have been developed and made transparent. Once you understand them you will be able to find what you are looking for easier, and hopefully in the process you will find some new, interesting, and useful content. To make it easier to find things, I have implemented a powerful search engine for the site. Using the new search engine, you will be able to find almost any information on the site without being guided through more than a dozen special pages. The new Search Engine is in addition to the one that I have already implemented for the site. Also, I have made changes to the organization and style of the site, in order to bring the styles and content together in a consistent manner
